

A grayscale pixelated image of a swastika, a common symbol of hate. The image is centered on a black background and consists of a grid of squares in various shades of gray, forming the characteristic cross shape of the symbol. The pixelation is evident, with each square being a distinct unit of the image. The overall appearance is that of a low-resolution, digital representation of the symbol.

